Comprehensive Assessment Process and Continuum of Evidence-Based Interventions

Youth Assessment and Screening Instrument (YASI)

- Legal History
- Family Issues
 - School
- Community & Peers
 - Alcohol & Drugs
 - Mental Health
 - Attitudes
- Skills (Social/Cognitive)
- Employment & Free Time

Targeted Interventions

- Risk – Prioritize supervision and Treatment Resources for higher-risk offenders
- Need – Target interventions to criminogenic needs
- Responsivity - Be responsive to temperament, learning style, motivation, culture & gender when assigning programs & services

Measure Processes & Outcomes

- Balanced Scorecard
- Research & Evaluation

Rationale for Low-Risk Group Reporting

- Placing low-risk offenders in more intense correctional interventions exposes them to higher-risk offenders
- Lower-risk offenders tend to have good school experiences, positive family relationships and are invested in pro-social activities
- Younger or naive low-risk offenders may be manipulated by more sophisticated, higher-risk, predatory offenders

The development of programs and supervision techniques that are based on the risk level of the offender can assist in maintaining those protective factors and pro-social supports that contribute to their being “Low-Risk.”
